NOTICE OF INVENTORS

It should be clearly understood that a Disclosure Document is not a patent application, nor will its filing do in any way become the effective date of a later filed patent application. A Disclosure Document may be relied upon only as evidence of conception of an invention and a patent application should be filed promptly and if patent protection is desired.

Your Disclosure Document will be retained for two years after the date it was received by the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) and will be destroyed thereafter unless it is referred to in a related patent application filed within the two-year period. The Disclosure Document may be referred to by way of a letter of transmittal in a new patent application or by a reference thereto in a pending application. Unless it is desired to have the USPTO retain the Disclosure Document beyond the two-year period, it is not required that it be referred to in the patent application.

The longer number period should not be considered to be a "grace period" during which the inventor can wait to file a patent application without penalty loss of benefits. It must be recognized that in establishing priority of invention on a claim or claims relating to a Disclosure Document must usually also establish diligence in completing the invention or in filing the patent application after the filing of the Disclosure Document.

If you are not familiar with what is considered to be "patents in connection with the invention" or "invention to protect" under the Patent Act or if you have other questions about patent matters, you can ~~contact~~ ^{consult} with an attorney or agent registered to practice before the USPTO. The patent attorneys and agents registered to practice before the United States Patent and Trademark Office, is available from the Government of the United States of America, Washington, DC 20542. Patent attorneys and agents are also listed in the hundreds of thousands of most major cities. Also, many large cities have associations of patent attorneys which may be consulted.

You can also now indicate that any public use or sale in the United States or preparation of your invention anywhere in the world more than one year prior to the filing of a patent application on that invention will preclude the granting of a patent on it.

Documents of importance which have been undervalued and, therefore, have been never recorded on our accounts of evidence which may be used to combat piracy.

There is a nationwide network of Patient and Treatment Discovery Centers (PTDCs), which have collections of patient and patient-related information available to the public, including referral access to USPTO databases. Protections such as Confidential Information Concerning Patients' Confidentiality in the PTDCs, as well as the USPTO's Web site at www.uspto.gov. To find out the location of the PTDC closest to you, please contact the complete listing of all PTDCs that appears on the USPTO's Web site or in any issue of the Official Gazette, or call the USPTO's Confidential Information Service at 1-800-PRO-PTO (1-800-776-7810) or 703-501-4559. To learn more about a PTDC and its mission, you may wish to contact a PTDC prior to visiting to learn about its activities, services, and hours.
